winner ORRICK & COMPANY

For well-traveled clients, the single destination that mattered most to them was one they could reach daily, just steps from their home. A covered breezeway leads from their main residence to a 21st-century barn with such un-farm-like elements as a steel-and-glass wine cellar and a dining area that the designers from Orrick & Company enhanced with an elegant built-in banquette bracketed by partially upholstered walls. Adjacent to this eating area—which is part of an open-plan great room—is a white-oak bar cabinet with a dramatic oxidized-metal backsplash. After having completed the first-floor interiors years ago, the designers were recently commissioned to transform the then-empty open space on the second floor, characterized by its soaring ceilings. It's there that the main living area features an oversized sectional set on a hand-loomed Moroccan wool rug, which melds with a kitchen noted for a 10-foot marble island and rift-sawn white-oak cabinetry. Throughout, the barn combines the rustic feel typical of such a traditional structure with decidedly contemporary, comfortable furnishings and detailing.
